President Hoover Will Emphasize Economic Plans

President Will Not Stress Plans On Prohibition

Campaign To Emphasize Economic Program For United States

CHIEF EXECUTIVE PLANS FEW SPEECHES

Hoover Will Not Discuss Prohibition Further During Campaign

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Having "said his say" on the thorny subject of prohibition, President Hoover plans to ignore it as an issue for the balance of the campaign, according to present plans.

He will make no fervent appeal to the country to accept his saloonless substitute for the 18th amendment. If the Democrats want to talk about prohibition well and good, but so far as Mr. Hoover personally is concerned he has closed the prohibition book until after the election.

Constructive Plan
He has armed his followers and Republican orators generally with ammunition with which to reply to Democratic attacks on the subject of prohibition. They can use it or not as they see fit, and undoubtedly most of them will. Taking their cue from Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance, the Republicans on the stump will present his plan as "constructive" as opposed to the "destructive" plan of outright repeal advanced by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Democratic platform.

As for Mr. Hoover himself, in the few speeches he plans to make during the campaign he will concentrate almost exclusively on economic issues. In his speech of acceptance Thursday night he spoke only three minutes about prohibition.

PA NEW OBSERVES

South Mill street traffic will appreciate the Pennsylvania Power company's improvements at the three railroad crossings. Workmen have done a good job of eliminating most of the jar a motorist formerly felt when driving over the crossings.

A colored man was comfortably seated on the top of a stack of automobile tires on display outside a South Mill street store when Pa New passed by. But if they'd toppled, his comfort would have fled.

New stop signs which are being placed at various street intersections by the city read "This Means Slow." We hope a lot of motorists will realize that these signs mean just that, too.

Just a little more than three weeks and the school children of the city will be back at their lessons, after a pleasant summer vacation.

Blankets felt mighty good last evening and Pa New observed smoke curling from more than one chimney this morning. It was pretty cool.

Night time in the New Castle vicinity hasn't brought such a dazzling show of shooting stars, if the opinion of several of our sky watchers is proof. Pa New has failed to see one. Perhaps others have.

NEW EFFORT TO MODIFY AMENDMENT FORECAST

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A proposal to modify the Eighteenth amendment today seemed likely of adoption at the December session of congress, as both Republican and Democratic leaders declared President Hoover had approved their specific modification plans in his acceptance speech.

Rep. James M. Beck, Republican leader of the house, endorsed the president's modification views, declaring they differed only in detail from the famous Beck-Lincoln resolution which the house almost adopted this summer. Simultaneously, Senator Carter Glass (D) of Virginia, a converted modificationist, said the president had accepted his resolution, which the senate defeated during the summer. There was a general sentiment on Capitol Hill that the president's proposal for prohibition reform would lead to submission of a new amendment next fall. The new amendment, while repealing the eighteenth, probably will retain in the federal government all control over interstate traffic in alcoholic liquors. It can scarcely go much further.

The president's demand for a federal man on saloons undoubtedly will develop a controversy. There will be stiff opposition to placing in the constitution any phrase outlawing the saloon.

Breakfast Is Cause Of Women Flyers Landing In Endurance Flight

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CURTIS FIELD, L. I., Aug. 13.—Grounded—because of breakfast! This was the plight of Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden today, when they ended their endurance flight after 17 hours and 33 minutes in the air.

The bucket containing their meagre morning refreshment smashed against the tip of the left wing of their cabin plane, tearing the fairing, and it was decided over the coffee cups to come down to earth and have it fixed. The damage was slight, but the women preferred stopping now, rather than within a short distance of their goal of more than 122 hours.

They will take off again this afternoon, after their plane came to a perfect landing at 9:50 a. m. near Valley Stream.

Plan Insurance If Milk Truck Driver Stops Gang Bullet

Milk Wagon Drivers' Association In Chicago Plans For Assistance

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—A unique form of insurance, providing for compensation to the family of any official of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union if he is assassinated by gangsters, was in effect today.

The union, it was learned, adopted the insurance scheme at its last meeting as a consequence of efforts on the part of underworld interests to "muscle in."

The plan sets aside $15,000 out of the union's $800,000 treasury to be paid to the family of any official within 24 hours of his murder, if the occasion arises.

Recently the union's headquarters were equipped with armor-plated doors, steel shuttered windows and bullet-proof peep holes. Across the street from the organization's building police set up a machine gun nest.

Owner Of Building Hunted By Police, Following Flames

Believe Fire Of Incendiarism Origin As Hot Water Bottles Of Gas Are Found

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—Police today sought the owner of a brick store and apartment house, destroyed by fire following an explosion early today, for questioning.

The discovery, according to firemen, of a number of hot water bottles filled with gasoline in the store following the blaze, resulted in the search for Jacob Spirer, Oakland, owner of the building.

Three families, living above the store, fled to the street in their night attire when awakened by two youths who discovered the flames in the store, police said. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

Devise Plan To Apportion State Road Work Here

Same Method As In Use For Pymatuning Dam Will Be Followed

COMMON LABOR TO BE AFFECTED

Hope To Distribute Benefit Of Employment—Only Citizens To Work

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 13.—A total of 32 counties in the state have abandoned teachers' institutes this year, according to an announcement from the state department of public instruction today.

The six latest abandonments and the savings thereby effected were in the following counties: Adams, $6,000; Clearfield, $10,000; Northampton, $10,000; Mercer, $11,000; Potter, $4,700, and Westmoreland, $30,000. District meetings for teachers have been substituted in most cases.

Following a conference today between the Lawrence county legislative delegation, the county commissioners and the superintendent of highways, a plan was worked out by which it is proposed to hire the labor for the new roads in the county, similar to that now used for the labor on the Pymatuning dam. Under this plan, politics will be eliminated, and every one given an equal chance of getting employment.

Briefly, the plan is this. The labor used on the highways will be selected from the list of unemployed on file with the department of labor and industry bureau in the Y. M. C. A. As Mr. Lightner, highway (Continued On Page Two)

Seeking To Delay Walker Decision

Court Decision Is Awaited On Governor's Authority In Case

ROOSEVELT MAY BE SAVED IN EMERGENCY

Decision May Be Shelved Until After Coming November Election

(International News Service)
ALBANY, Aug. 13.—Mayor James J. Walker's battle to prevent his removal as chief magistrate of New York seemed decidedly nearer success today than when the public hearing began last Thursday before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The prospect of Governor Roosevelt acting quickly on the removal charges is now remote, as a result of the court order issued by Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hiram yesterday, which blocks a decision until August 19, when the governor's authority to remove the mayor will be argued in court.

To Continue Legal Battle
Indications are that if the court on August 19 upholds the governor's contention that he has jurisdiction in the Walker case other court battles will follow.

Politically, Governor Roosevelt is the beneficiary of the present situation of the battle hanging around Walker's removal, in the opinion of observers, for the governor may not have to act on the delicate matter of ruling on the removal of the mayor until after the Presidential election.

There was no session of the hearing today, the governor having adjourned the proceedings until Monday afternoon when Mayor Walker will resume the stand for further questioning concerning the charges. Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the Hofstadter legislative inquiry, has filed against the mayor.

Travels Over Million Miles On Street Car During Service Here

Would the average reader like to travel approximately 1,054,266 miles aboard a street car during a period of 34 years 11 months? Some would and others would not but one local resident who can claim to have ridden this far is L. C. Houston who retired as a motorman for the New Castle Electric Street Railway company a few days ago.

Houston started as a motorman in September, 1897. He later became a conductor and when the "one man" cars came into operation here he again became a motorman. According to records at the New Castle Electric Street Railway company, his daily mileage has averaged more than 82 miles. Providing he has worked 365 days a year for the 34 years and 11 months he has travelled approximately 1,054,266 miles. He has performed his duty meritoriously. During his long period of service he has earned many friends who will miss him on the cars.

Young Man Killed In Extortion Plot

Companion Arrested And Confesses, Tried To Collect On Stolen Church Vestments

(International News Service)
CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—Rudolph Flory, 23, was arrested here today and confessed, police said, to participating in an extortion plot climaxed here last night by the fatal shooting of William Tischbein, 23, of New York City, charged with trying to collect $200 ransom money to return $2,000 worth of stolen church vestments.

Tischbein was shot and killed by Deputy Sheriff Emil Gau last night in the lonely shrine grounds of the Mount Alverno Boys' Institute, west of here, where he had gone to collect $200 for return of the vestments, according to police. The vestments had been stolen from the institute, it was charged.

The companion of Tischbein, who fled during the shooting, was undoubtedly Flory, the man arrested today, police stated. He surrendered peacefully.

Tischbein, a native of Germany, had been expelled from the boys' institute for "unruliness," officials told. He was charged.

Harold McCormick Goes To See Former Wife As She Lies Gravely Ill

Carries Armful Of Pale Yellow Roses, Favorite Flower Of First Wife

First Time In Many Years That Multi-Millionaire Has Talked With Edith Rockefeller

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Pale yellow roses drooped gently in a vase beside the sickbed of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick today.

Their lush fragrance filled the room. Their melancholy beauty bespoke in terms more eloquent than words memories of a bygone romance.

They were the gallant gift of Harold F. McCormick. He carried them last night when quietly he entered the Drake hotel suite where his former wife lies seriously ill.

Recalls Romance.
Pale yellow roses were Edith Rockefeller's favorite flowers when Harold F. McCormick wooed and won her. They were her cherished blooms when she, as a girl of 23, was married to the son of the inventor of the reaper against the desires of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller.

Pale yellow roses are still her favorites. Harold McCormick remembered that. And when he visited his former wife the Harvester magnate brought an armful of the sweet-smelling flowers.

It was a chivalrous gesture on the part of the man who has been divorced from Chicago's queen of society for 11 years.

For several hours the multimillionaire sat beside the bed of his first wife. They were alone together, perhaps for the first time in many years. They spoke to each other quietly, then the magnate arose from his chair, took his leave, and departed by the same route he had come, a connecting passageway leading to the Drake towers, where his son, Fowler, lives.

CONFERENCE OVER, PITTSBURGH GROUP LEAVES ON PENNSY

A party of Pittsburgh district delegates to the New Wilmington Missionary conference which closed last night, boarded a special car attached to train No. 424 of the Pennsylvania lines for their journey home at 11:10 a. m. today. They came from the college town by special bus. A week ago a special coach brought them here for the conference sessions.

Von Papen Will Not Be Replaced By Adolph Hitler

Hitler's Fight To Be Made Chancellor Ends In Failure

CONFERENCE FAILS TO GRANT DEMAND

Thousands Of Hitler's Troops Concentrated In Fields Around Berlin

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Adolf Hitler's determined fight to be named chancellor of Germany ended in failure today.

At the conclusion of a fifteen-minute conference between President Von Hindenburg and the Nazi leader, chief of 14,000,000 zealous followers, it was announced that Lieutenant Colonel Franz Von Papen would remain at the head of the German ship of state.

Compromise Plan Fails
Indications were that efforts to compromise Hitler's demands had failed completely.

While the crucial conference was in progress, thousands of Hitler's brown-shirted storm troops were concentrated in fields and meadows about Berlin, reported to be prepared to march on the capital and seize the government by force if their leader was refused the chancellorship.

Suggests Coalition
Von Hindenburg, it was learned, asked Hitler to participate in a coalition cabinet in some post other than the chancellorship. The 85-year-old president suggested that if Hitler himself was disinclined to take anything less than the top rung of the ladder, he might appoint one of his lieutenants to bring the National Socialist party into a coalition.

Hitler, true to the promises he made to his followers, demanded full executive power. This Von Hindenburg refused to accord him.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 13.—One trapeze artist was killed and another is near death today as a result of falling while performing high above the heads of spectators at an amusement pier.

Irene Berger, 21, while riding the swing 80 feet up in the air, slipped and hurtled to the ground. She died soon afterwards.

Roxie La Rosa, 27, whose husband was watching the performance, fell when Miss Berger's body struck the apparatus by which La Rosa was hanging by the teeth.

Those days of heavy labor now are paying back their due, and vegetables are plentiful for you and you and you. The beans that nearly broke your back as you essayed to hoe 'em, are now a prize and folks delight to other folks to show 'em. The corn is just in season now, the beets and garden truck, and as you look your garden over you know you've had some luck. Those blisters now are callouses, the creaks have gone away from out your back, caused by the hoe, it's seventy eight today.

FOURTH BIRTHDAY HONORED AT PARTY

Youngsters in daintily ruffled frocks of pastel shades, and in neatly pressed suits, gathered on a recent afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clyde Nicholson on Hillcrest avenue when she entertained in honor of the fourth birthday anniversary of her little daughter, Mina Lou.

The occasion was in the form of a lawn party, games and contests of an amusing nature providing entertainment, and at the close of the program prizes were given to Mary Coates, Ruth Gallagher, Jimmie Crafton and Junior Berkeimer for their success.

At an appropriate hour they were seated at a large table arranged in the shade of trees and decorated with a birthday cake in the center, topped with glowing candles numbering four. Flowers and slender tapers at either side with novelties being found at each place, completed the setting. Covers marked for 24.

AMERICA AT THE OLYMPIAD

SUCCESS has crowned the tenth Olympiad of modern times. Attendance records have been broken, which is an important item in a time of world depression. There has been a minimum of misunderstanding and ill feeling between contestants and between contestants and judges. And enough records have been broken to make sports history. From the American viewpoint, at least, it is proving the most notable athletic event in years.

This Olympiad has again shown that the plain and simple forms of athletic endeavor, running, jumping and hurling, which men practiced in the childhood of the race and to which the child and the schoolboy in every age and every clime naturally take as the normal vent of the urge to exercise, play and compete possess the universal appeal. They were the staple of the classic Olympic games; they are the fundamentals of every sport today.

America is proud of her team. Its members have kept their pledge to bring honor to their country and glory to sports. The country is proud of its Tolans, Carrs, Shileys and Didricks, who have demonstrated that the American athlete is still to be reckoned with.

The games at Los Angeles are notable for another reason. They have brought the feminine athlete to the fore as never before, making her a permanent and conspicuous part of the Olympic games. She has contributed skill, grace and color to the biggest and best athletic show on earth.

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT IN WASHINGTON

There is more than ordinary significance in the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt should have received and accepted an invitation to attend the notification ceremonies in Washington. It is not surprising, of course, that the widow of one of the greatest of our Republican Presidents should favor the re-election of President Hoover. The interest lies in the fact that she proposes to support him not merely in a polite and complimentary manner, but with all of her energy and ability.

On Wednesday Mrs. Roosevelt gave a luncheon at her Sagamore Hill home in honor of the birthday of Mr. Hoover, which was attended by 300 women. Moreover she made a speech—said to be the longest political address she has made in years—in which she told her guests that "we must take off our coats, roll up our sleeves and elect our President." A telegram was sent to the President reading: "We send our congratulations and best wishes in deep appreciation of your record for the last four years and with confidence in your success in November. We pledge to you our hearty and enthusiastic support."

It must be evident to everybody that the widow of Theodore Roosevelt wishes to emphasize the fact that she believes the best interests of the country lie in the re-election of Herbert Hoover. She wants this to be made known to everybody in the country with whom her opinions may have any influence. Her attitude is as much as to say that were Theodore Roosevelt alive today he would be one of the ardent supporters of President Hoover. He would probably declare that one good term deserves another and that it is bad business to swap horses while crossing a stream. During the lifetime of her distinguished husband Mrs. Roosevelt remained in the background, but it is no secret that the apostle of the Square Deal had enormous confidence in her judgment. Now that he has gone she steps forward to announce the attitude of the family in the forthcoming election. Her evident eagerness to aid President Hoover is sure to win additional votes for him.

COUNTY FAIRS CLAIM ATTENTION OF STATE OFFICIALS

This month and next are County Fair months in Pennsylvania, and the State Department of Health, through its Restaurant Hygiene Division, is charged with the protection of the health of all visitors to these places of public gathering. For several weeks Howard M. Haines, chief of this division, has been maturing plans for the careful inspection of each fair as it is opened.

Medical examinations by a registered physician must be made of all food and drink handlers.

All utensils used for eating purposes must be thoroughly cleansed with hot water and soap after each individual use. All clothing of food handlers must be clean and sanitary. Garbage must be placed in tight metal containers, securely covered, and removed from the premises daily.

All foods on display for distribution or sale, must have full protection from dust, dirt, flies and vermin. Common drinking vessels must not be used at public drinking places.

Toilets must be kept constantly in a sanitary condition, well disinfected and free from odors. The management of the fair must see to it that all manure and garbage is removed from the grounds daily.

One of the most important protections to the public health is the medical examination of all food and drink handlers, which is for the purpose of providing that no communicable disease of any type be carried to the visitor at the fair, by those who serve the refreshments.

All health officers in the county in which the fair is located, will cooperate with the Restaurant Hygiene Division in enforcing the terms of the Act of Assembly, during the local fair, it is announced.

POST CARD DUNS

For the protection of the public and to curb unscrupulous collectors of over-due accounts there is a federal law requiring notices of unpaid balances and other typical duns to be sent only in sealed envelopes with sufficient postage and providing severe penalties for violations thereof. It is an old statute to which the postoffice department has had occasion to call public attention since the new three-cent letter rate went into effect.

Since the increase in the letter rates many creditors and collection agencies have substituted the postcard for the traditional first-of-the-month letters. In many cases economy has undoubtedly been the only motive. But there are other cases in which hardboiled collectors have used economy merely as a pretext.

To advertise a man's debts on a postcard which goes through many hands between sender and receiver is a reprehensible form of coercion, especially under present economic conditions. It is unethical and unbecoming a legitimate enterprise. Its efficacy does not justify it.

Notices of the due date of certain obligations are permissible on postcards and respectful messages requesting the settlement of current bills are defensible. But when creditors and collectors go farther than that the law ought to be rigidly enforced.

All Of Us

I Gave Him Money
He Gave Me Praise
Not a Fair Exchange

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I have heard it's a social service sin of the worst kind to give money to men who accost you on the street. But what are you to do if you have money in your pocket and a human creature comes up and asks you for help, and looks as if he needed all you had to spare? Give him an address that will be good tomorrow, or give him something that will help him right now? . . . That will help him and appease your own conscience for being more fortunate than he. . . . I think I know your answer and that's what I did.

I was standing before a theater between the acts, and I saw him long before he saw me. A shabby little fellow, in yellow shoes and a leather coat and yellow hair that showed his northern blood. . . . And I knew he would ask me for money before he knew. That always happens, and it may be interpreted in two ways. One that is flattering, one the reverse of that.

He called me "mate" and said he was "on the beach" and could I help him? No cringing and no truculence in his voice. He was just asking, that was all; and if he got it, all right, and if he didn't he'd move along without a word. . . . Well, I put my hand in my pocket for some change, something less than a quarter, and I had nothing less than half a dollar. But you can't ask a stranger who's on the beach if he has change; so I gave him the half and he looked at me in grave surprise and said nobody'd ever given him a half before. Not in eleven months. . . . He assured me he wasn't a "drinking man" and when I replied that it didn't matter to me what he did with that money, he looked me all over again and praised me some more. He said he had had men give him a dime and then follow him down the block to see what he did with it.

He said I was "different" and he hoped I'd never be on the beach the way he was—and then he slipped off into the crowds once more—and I felt quite pleased about myself.

For about two minutes. . . . Just long enough to remember that I'd given that vagrant acquaintance a wrong picture of myself. . . . Just until I remembered that though it's easy enough to give a man a piece of money and not care what he does with it, it's not so easy to give yourself and care as little what is done with that gift. . . . It's difficult letting people alone; it's seldom that friendship exists without trivial interference. And too often we use the love we bear for people as an excuse for poking at them and pinching them and trying to make them over. Again and again I've done that and gotten myself into trouble because of it—but hardly ever learned anything lasting for all my pain and grief.

No, my sidewalk friends, you were quite mistaken. And if you should happen to come my way again I'll try to make it clear that I took your praise under false pretenses.

Just Folks

FOOLISH SENTIMENTALISTS

They set us down for fools who stand To watch the children on the sand, Or pause upon our busy way To hear a song bird's roundelay.

Harsh men of reason, stern and cold, Our trivial delights behold And tell us all earth's gladness lies In being very shrewd and wise.

In panic times or business boom We're captured by a rose in bloom, Or lose a precious hour or day And hear what sad folks have to say.

Such common things as hills and trees Which every living mortal sees, And sharper men go rushing past Have power to hold us weaklings fast.

They may be rich! We may be fools To find such joy in silver pools; But since to beauty were inclined, Our lack of strength we no not mind. (Copyright, 1932, Edgar A. Guest.)

TODAY'S STORYETTE

A struggling artist was noted for three things: his scarcity of cash, his short temper and his nerve.

One day while seated at the breakfast table at his club, a debt collector, who some way or other had managed to get past the hall porter, arrived and presented his bill.

"Sir," snapped the artist, glaring hard at the man, "is this all you know of the usage of decent society? To present a bill to a man breakfasting? Are you aware, sir, that you are an intruder in this club? Do you know also that if I wish I could call the servants of the club and have you thrown out? Now, sir, if you wish to talk business with me, go outside and present your card to the hall porter."

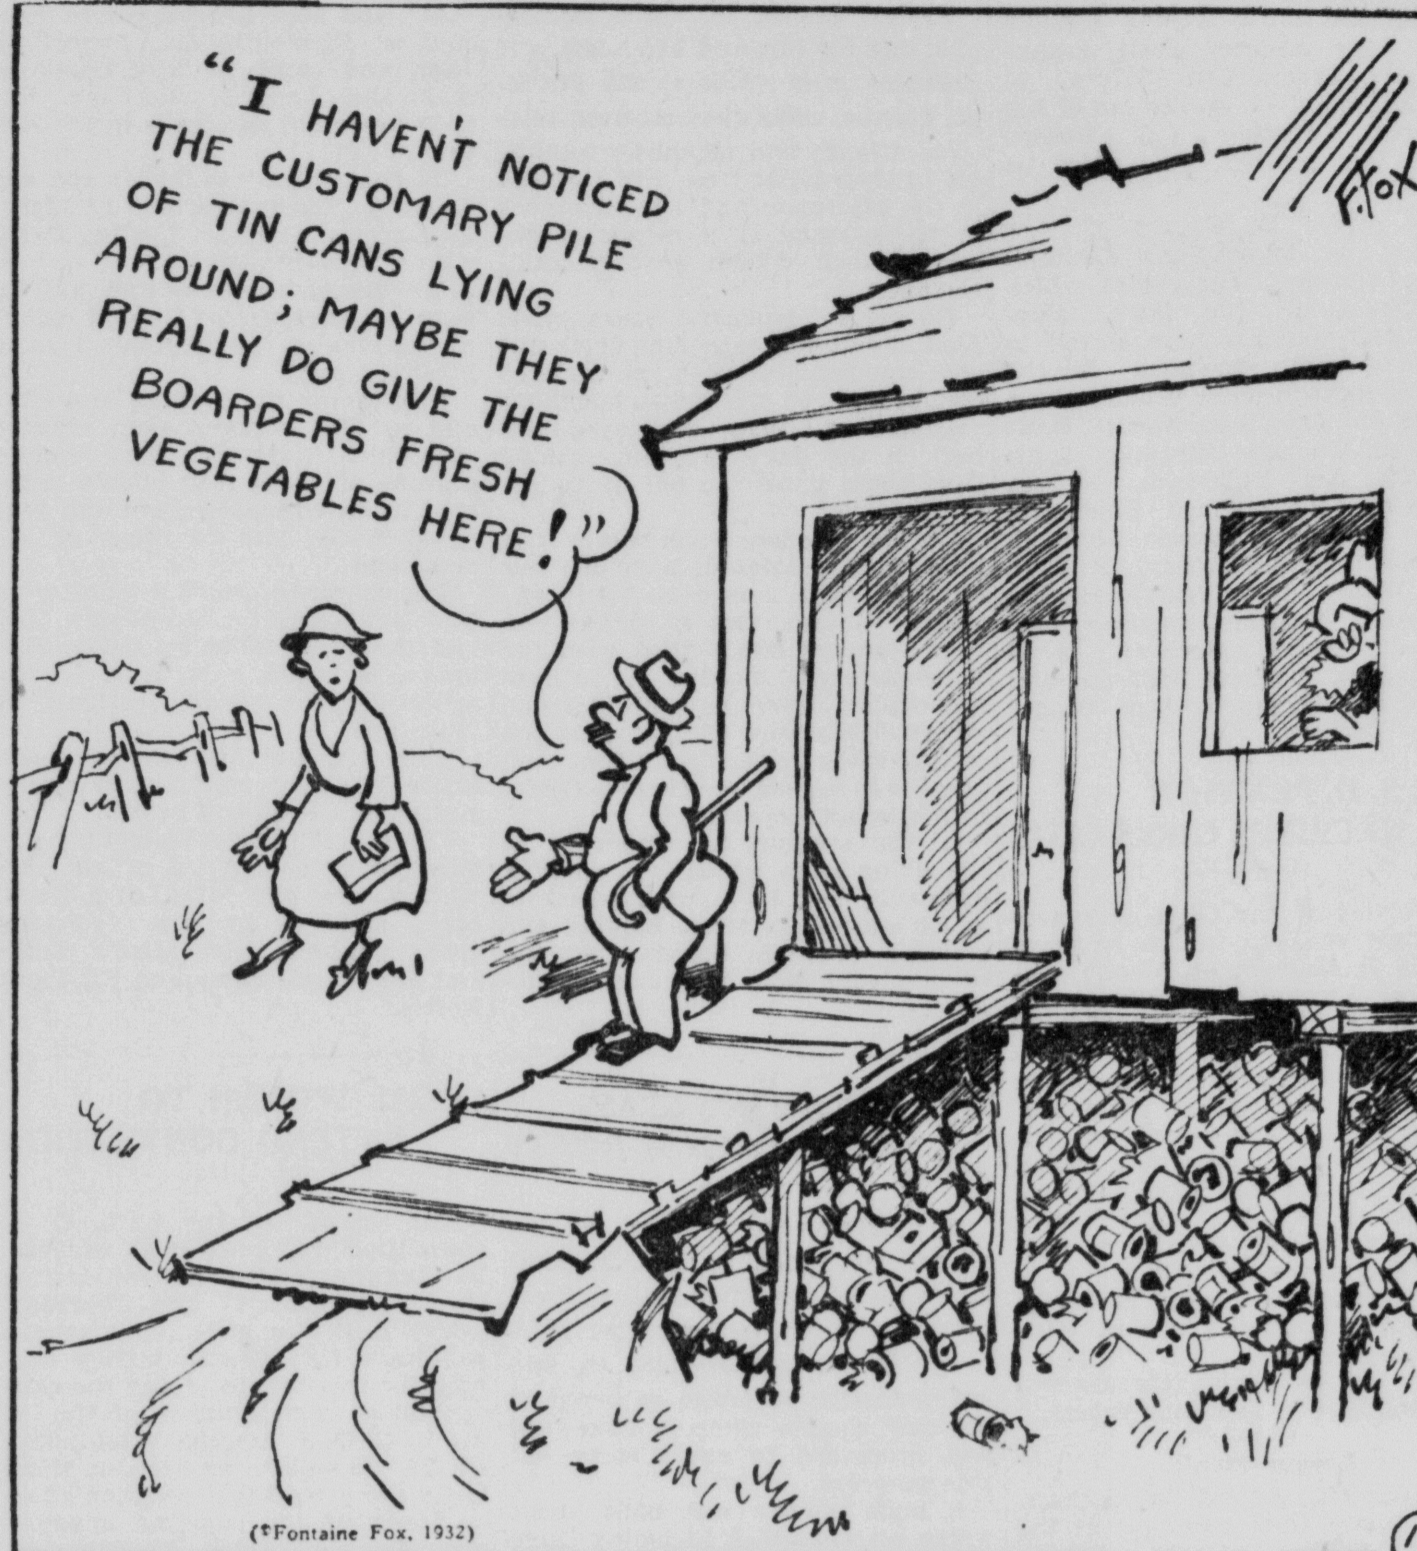

The nervous little man went outside and presently the hall porter arrived with a card on a salver.

The artist picked it up and read the name.

"Tell the gentleman," he said, "that I am not in."

But recently I spotted a rib tickler in Hints and Dints all about a poor scrub woman who was mistaken by the theatrical manager for an embryo prima donna, and pronounced "rotten" after singing Annie Laurie for a supposed try-out.

The cleverly written little story reminded me of something that really happened in one of the leading stores in this fair city, operated by a giant in intellect and in financial progress. A callow youth, just graduated from a business college, was engaged as a clerk.

One day things were rather dull, and the lad listened in wonder to the exploits of a fellow clerk, who could put this and that over on the Argus-eyed floor walker, who properly concerns himself with the firm's best interests. To match the darddevil spoofer, another boasted of his ability to handle difficult customers, and still another of being able to detect the difference between the real buyer from the professional window shopper.

One thing about money is that it gets a lot of people who get it into trouble. Those same people would never be heard of if they did not have the money. Being heard of without money is a real thing.

One of the surest ways to keep from getting robbed, according to one of the men about town, is to carry your money in 10,000 bills. No bank, it seems, will change a $10,000 bill without carefully examining a list to make sure it isn't stolen. This seems like a first rate idea and this department will immediately have all its pocket money changed into $10,000 bills. There's nothing like being careful.

Trade Work In Depression Big Task For Two Leaders

New Head Of Commerce Department Viewed As Heir To Tremendous Problem Of Advancing Interests Of American Industry

Resignation of Robert P. Lamont as secretary of commerce, and appointment of Roy D. Chapin as his successor, remind the public of the prodigious task faced by the chief of this government agency in a time of depression. Both men are praised for their qualities as leaders, and each is sure to have an important place in the business recovery that is expected. Mr. Chapin's place as a representative of the automotive industry is believed to fit him for the new government duties.

"Secretary Lamont," says the LEXINGTON LEADER, "after rendering the most important services in his position at great financial sacrifice, has found it necessary to return to private life in order to care for various important business interests." The CHARLOTTE OBSERVER states that the President: "gave Mr. Lamont a merited degree of praise for service of a sacrificial sort," and that Mr. Chapin "is a man of big business and has a record as an executive of marked abilities."

Mr. Lamont's service as former head of American Steel Foundries is recalled by the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN, with the estimate that he "was a recognized leader in the industry" and that "as head of that institution he may perform as genuinely public service as he was rendering in the chair of the 'Department of Commerce.'" The BULLETIN also comments: "This association with federal government in its intimate circle has given him a further equipment in a clear understanding of the attitude and relationship of government and law to big business, which should be of particular value at this time. There is need of industrial concert in working out the solution of serious problems. Even under the Sherman law the Iron and Steel Institute has a legitimate field and function, and may render important service."

Mr. Lamont, carrying the load of the department through the most trying period it has experienced," according to the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, "bore the burden in a manner that won the approval of the President and the country. He battled diligently to hold the front for America's foreign and domestic trade, and assumed new duties of an exigent nature arising out of the economic situation. All of these he discharged with diligent fidelity."

The OAKLAND TRIBUNE remarks that "Secretary Lamont retires after seeing the more unpleasant months, and in the knowledge his successor will find things easier."

"That Secretary Lamont has had enough," comments the SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN, "one may reasonably infer; his resignation, however, should not be ascribed to personal failure. The fates and the depression were against him. If he entered office hoping to see our commerce establish new records for magnitude, possibly he had become pessimistic. In that case, his successor is the right sort. For Mr. Chapin of Detroit regards the depression as a 'breathing spell,' furnishing us all the opportunity to 'stop and think' over why we are here and where we are going."

How can such a man fail to be a pleasant or restful experience for Secretary Lamont, and the country owes him a vote of thanks," declares the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL, while the BUFFALO EVENING NEWS suggests that the event "should remind the people that they receive, as a matter of fact, a great deal of service from government officials of a type whom they never could afford to hire."

"The naming of Mr. Lamont as virtual 'dictator' of the steel industry and the formation of a powerful wheat and cotton pool, as viewed by the HARTFORD DAILY TIMES, 'suggests the formulation of plans by which these vast interests propose to help themselves rather than look to government.'" Noting that Eugene Meyer resigned from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to head the latter group, The Times continues: "What may come out of such large-scale planning, experts will need to prove. It is at least an encouraging sign that the initiative is being taken by the leaders within the industries in question and not by political guidesmen. In the steel business it is proposed to eliminate unsound methods of marketing. Implied is the thought of closer co-operation between all steel manufacturers, an aim which, of course, will need to run the gauntlet of the federal anti-trust laws. But within the purview of these laws any improvement which can be brought about to increase steel manufacture activity which now hovers around the painfully low level of 15 per cent of capacity, will be hailed as for the good of the economic life of the nation in which steel normally plays an important role. The Meyer organization properly is going to 'wash up' the federal farm board's work by absorbing what wheat and cotton the latter still holds and then undertake to guide supply and demand in these important commodities from within instead of looking to a government agency."

"The problem of reviving this nation's foreign trade," avers the HOUSTON CHRONICLE, "is a serious one, and it will probably receive the immediate attention of Mr. Chapin. Since 1929 America's exports to the world markets have fallen off sharply. A strong campaign for selling our products abroad is almost fatally handicapped by the fact that other nations have no money with which to buy our goods and are at present energetically at work raising tariff barriers instead of lowering them. Mr. Chapin will have to perform heroic labors in his new position. American business men who have witnessed his success at Detroit will have confidence in his leadership at this time when every possible effort is being made to bring about the return of economic normality in America and in the world."

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDT

How about it old man, aren't you rather selfish about how you spend your evenings?

You are amiable enough when you can do just as you desire but if your own routine is in any way interfered with you become peeved.

Your wife may want to spend the early part of the evening in a way that would not tax your strength or prevent you from getting your usual hours of sleep.

But you don't care for her kind of enjoyment and you say so although she often accompanies you places she does not care to go, mostly without comment.

You expect her to be willing to do as you suggest but you have no idea of falling in gracefully with any of her plans, should she express herself.

What is the matter with your line of reasoning that you should expect to lead in all plans for leisure and recreation?

You think you make a good excuse when you say you are tired.

But your wife is unpleasantly aware of the fact that you never are too tired to do what you want to do.

Naturally she resents the fact that you are only too tired when her plans come up for fulfillment.

When are you going to be ashamed of your selfishness and go at least 50-50 willingly?

Some Stocks Show Weakness—Steel Holds Relatively Steady

RALLY IN SECOND HOUR AIDS MARKET

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Speculative enthusiasm which had whirled stocks up to the highest prices in six months received its second severe setback today as prices broke one to five points more in another selling wave.

Wheat continued to go down. Other commodity markets also showed a heavy tone, and bonds were under pressure. This was the signal for another rush to sell. Allied Chemical was the weak spot, breaking five points before meeting support. Union Pacific broke more than four points, closing behind were Auburn and Case Threshing, yesterday's weak spots. Week-end short covering came to the support of the stock market today and brought a rally which wiped out losses of one to five points scored in a selling wave in the first hour.

There was further selling in the final dealings and the close was lower with stocks down from fractions to two points.

Rails led the closing reaction following the decrease of more than 14,000 cars in the week's freight loadings report. Leaders like American Telephone and Allied Chemical were down one to two points. U. S. Steel was off a good sized fraction and Auburn a point.

PLAY AT GRANGE

The plot was one long procession of irresistibly funny situations in which Pauline Bonts, as Mary Winter, the college stick, was the wall-flower who never was included in the social functions, goes to St. Louis for the summer vacation, and returns as Cinderella and captures the most popular college boy which is Bruce Wright.

The cast included Fanchion Kirk, Marjorie Doak, Agnes Smith, Betty Thompson and Dorothy Latimer as College Girls; Grace Wimer as Dean of Women; Chester Smith and Dick Tillia, as college boys and Frank Brown as the boy from St. Louis.

Music by the church orchestra; a pantomime, Talkative Tillie by Grace Wimer; vocal solos by Marjorie Doak; saxophone solo by Clair Kirk; accompanied by Jean Kirk; solo by Rebecca Wright; trombone solo by Homer Doak and a piano solo by Charlotte Richter, added much to the amusement of the evening.

General Government Expense Is Millions Less Than Decade Ago

Judicial Branch Costs Eight Million More In 1930 Than 1921

Administrative Branch Shows Decrease Of 272 Millions Of Dollars

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent Of The New Castle News

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—In these days of so much talk about government expenditure it is interesting to know that it cost $260,000,000 less to run the government proper in 1930 than in 1921. The Institute of Government Research is responsible for this comparison of figures.

The institute has recently completed the first survey ever made of actual government costs. In its study, the institute took each department and bureau and separated the cost of operation from the amounts paid out in pensions, grants to states, and other forms of relief or subsidy. The results are surprising.

In 1930, when the federal budget amounted to $3,846,895,149, the actual cost of operating the government proper was only $1,274,850,467, according to the institute. In 1921, this corresponding cost was $1,534,039,419, or $260,000,000 greater.

These figures indicate, then, that in 1930 not nearly so much was expended on the operation of the government proper as in other functions of the federal organization.

War and Navy Branches Costly

The judicial branch of government spent $18,694,812 in 1930 as against $10,966,456 in 1921, according to the institute. The institute thought that this "increase might be expected in view of the greatly added burdens that have been thrown upon the federal courts as agencies for enforcing prohibition and other regulatory acts."

The administrative branch in 1930 spent $1,240,941,845. This was a decrease of $272,000,000 below the 1921 level. In the administrative branch, military activities accounted for $700,137,467 of these expenditures.

Other interest and premium on public debts, pensions, grants-in-aid and surrender of income to states, territories and dependencies, government of territories and dependencies, public works, and miscellaneous, $1,571,672,752.

Special business enterprises which include the postal services, Panama Canal, Merchant Fleet, Inland Waters corporation, reclamation service, and etc., $98,067,135.

Non-governmental costs, including reduction of debt and investments in Federal Land and Intermediate Credit Bank bonds, and Federal Farm Board Loan fund, $960,014,793.

Of the money needed for operation of the government proper in 1930, the sum of $14,607,033 was spent by Congress on itself, for salaries, mileage, clerk hire, maintaining the capital building and grounds, hiring legislative counsel, and constructing a new house office building. This was substantially higher than the $9,854,454 spent by Congress for such purposes in 1921 but was a half million dollars less than similar expenditures in 1927.

William Dickinson of Union township has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Robert M. McQuiston of this city, to collect damages as a result of an automobile accident on West Washington street.

Dickinson claims that he was driving toward New Castle and was on his own side of the road. He was going down grade, approaching a curve, as McQuiston was coming toward him from the opposite direction.

At the curve it is claimed that the McQuiston car went across from its side of the road and struck the Dickinson car, completely demolishing it. Dickinson charges that McQuiston was driving at a high rate of speed.

Dickinson wants $250 for the loss of his car and $500 damages for injuries received in the collision.

Supplies Are Ready For City Registrars

Notices For Posting At Polling Places Will Be Delivered Next Week

Preparations for the registration of voters in the city of New Castle on September 8, 20 and October 8 are being made at the county commissioners' office. The notices of registration days, three of which must be put up at each polling place, and the books for registering voters, are now ready.

County Commissioners' Clerk William A. Eakin stated this morning that both the notices and the books will be delivered to registrars during the week. Formerly notices were mailed out to registrars for posting and they had to call for their books.

It has been found that with increased postage the notices can be mailed, and while the deliveries are being made the books will be delivered also, thus saving registrars the trouble of coming after them.

At least three notices of registration days must be posted at the different polling places next week. Every person who expects to vote at the November election must register. It will be necessary for the voter to take along a county tax receipt showing that taxes have been paid within the past two years.

The law requires that persons be assessed at least 60 days before the election, and taxes must be paid at least 30 days before election.

Jamieson Sent To Home By Indians

Veteran Outfielder Suffering With Partially Paralyzed Face Due To His Teeth

(International News Service) CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—Charlie Jamieson, veteran outfielder of the Cleveland Indians, who is suffering from a partially paralyzed face, today was ordered by his physician to return to his Paterson, N. J., home for a "complete rest."

The affliction has caused Jamieson to lose control of his right eye, and has affected his vision, according to Dr. M. H. Castle, physician of the Cleveland Indians.

Jamieson's condition was not regarded as serious by Dr. Castle, and the player has been at the ball park in uniform since the paralysis was first noticed on Thursday.

The paralysis was believed to have been caused by abscesses. Five teeth were extracted yesterday.

Officials of the club yesterday gave Jamieson a furlough for the rest of the season. He was expected to return to his New Jersey home with his wife and children in a few days. His family has been residing here since the baseball season started.

Just Wanted Change; Didn't Want Ride

Must Have Peculiar Idea Of What A Street Car Is To Be Used For

Apparently there is a man on Mahoning avenue who believes that the street cars are operated for his special benefit or something like that, according to the story reported from that district Friday.

A man, apparently a foreigner, stopped a street car as it was going along Mahoning avenue. As the operator opened the door the man inquired, "Have change for $5?"

"Sure," responded the operator of the car as the man stepped in. Assuming that he had a passenger, the operator closed the door and started up the car, when he learned his mistake.

"No, no," exclaimed the man with the $5, "me no wants ride, me want change for $5. Let me off."

The man got off and as far as can be determined, without the change. He evidently thought that the street car was a bank on wheels and the operator the cashier.

HEAT TURNED ON AT COUNTY JAIL

First signs of approaching fall were in evidence at the courthouse this morning when one of the boilers was fired in order to furnish heat for the jail. There is little sunshine gets into the jail. The floors are cement, walls brick and cells iron. After it is scrubbed out it takes some time to dry, and this morning it was found to be uncomfortable without heat.

Four Stage Early Watch, See Predicted Star Show

An enthusiastic quartet of New Castle sky watchers were rewarded for a second time last night as they maintained a close vigil for the shower of brilliant meteors coming from the constellation Perseus in the northeast heavens.

The watchers, all deeply interested in the mysteries of astronomy, reported the heaviest flow of meteors appeared Thursday night. On that night the display was partly in the northwest.

Nicholas Cassillo, senior high school science instructor, and Theodore Higgins, Dr. E. H. Willmarth and Robert Toler were the four who watched the second night's act early today. They witnessed the sky exhibit at 1:15 a. m.

In the space of 14 minutes we counted 13 meteors, Cassillo related. "The moon had lowered to the southwest and its rays didn't mar the distinctness of the display. They were seen in the northeast section."

Cassillo also reported seeing three shooting meteors at the very same time. The meteoric show concentrated Thursday and last night but it will be visible on clear nights for some time, it was said. The Perseids, as the display is known, are an annual occurrence, appearing when the earth crosses the orbit of Perseus.

Others also told of watching the sky fireworks.

which time the societies of the church will have a procession and bring their silver jubilee offerings.

In August 1906, the corner stone of St. Vitus church was laid and August 15, 1907 the church was dedicated, with the Bishop of Pittsburgh and many other priests taking part in the celebration, and Monday the celebration of the silver jubilee will begin with the church services, and then continue all week with a celebration on South Mill street each evening.

Rev. Fr. Nicholas DiMita, pastor of St. Vitus church, announces that all plans are completed for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the present church building, which will begin Monday with the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary.

Four masses will be held Monday morning; one at 6 a. m.; 7:30, 9:00 and solemn high mass at 10:45 and

Detroit Wins In Baseball Protest

Yankees Must Re-Play Game At Detroit Upon Next Visit, President Declares

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Protest of the Detroit Tigers against the victory of the New York Yankees in a game played at Detroit on Monday, Aug. 1, was allowed by President William Harbridge, of the American League. The game must be re-played during the next trip of the New York club to Detroit in September.

The protest of the Detroit club was based on the action of Umpire Nalini in permitting Lazzeri to bat fifth in the Yankee line-up after the batting order was changed by the umpires and announced to the press had placed Chapman batting fifth. President Harbridge ruled that Nalini had no authority to permit a change in batting order after the start of the game, except by substitution of players.

Mayor Walker Loses In Verbal Tilt With Seabury At Hearing

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 13—Mayor James J. Walker clashed sharply with his accuser, Samuel Seabury, when the latter sought to cross-examine him at the public hearing Friday before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt on the charges of calling for the mayor's removal from office.

"You have no more right to cross-examine me than I have to cross-examine the governor," Walker vehemently declared, his face flushing. Seabury, who had been calmly listening to the governor's interrogation of Walker on details of the Equitable Bus company franchise and matters relating to it had suddenly risen to his feet and interposed a question. As Seabury sought to put the question to the mayor, Walker's counsel, John J. Curtin, vigorously protested and made a formal objection.

Objection Overruled.

The governor overruled the objection, however. "Your excellency," shouted Mayor Walker, "I submit that this cross-examination has certainly no foundation in law any more than I have the right to cross-examine you here on why you have arrived at the decisions you made today. This was an executive administration for which I am responsible to the people. I am going to waive it, and I'm going to answer—but I want to here give a close-up of the character and the aspect of the investigation we have had, which would not be obtained or permitted in any other place."

Seabury quietly informed the mayor or if he didn't want to answer the question he would ask him another, to which the mayor replied that he'd answer all right, but wanted to point out that he had "some prerogatives."

Seabury Winner.

Evidently changing his mind, Seabury

bury suddenly dropped the idea of cross-examining Walker and said:

"No further questions."

Seabury had attempted to ask Walker if, when he voted for the Equitable franchise, he did not know "that there was no firm commitment from the J. G. White company."

"I don't understand that," snapped the mayor, and when Seabury started to clarify the question the mayor and his counsel vigorously claimed he had no right whatever to cross-examine.

Governor Roosevelt, in his interrogation, questioned the mayor closely regarding the Equitable franchise, granted in 1927 but never carried out because the company was not sufficiently financed. He also asked the mayor concerning Seabury's charge that Walker acted in the Equitable matter to benefit a group of persons, including his friend, State Senator John A. Hastings. All the charges Mayor Walker vigorously denied.

Ray Street Now Main Thoroughfare Entire Distance

Chief Haven Causes Traffic Hazard Removed At Court And Ray Streets

Through action of Chief of Police John Haven, a traffic hazard that has existed for some time at the Court street intersection of Ray street has been eliminated and Ray street has been made a main thoroughfare clear through for its entire distance.

Formerly Court street was the main thoroughfare at Ray street. Now the reverse is true. The stop signs which were on Ray street at Court have now been placed on Court street at Ray street. It is anticipated that this is an improvement in traffic regulation that will be beneficial to the motorists.

Makes Sycamore Way One Way Thoroughfare

Chief Haven Makes Important Change To Relieve Congested Condition

For some time past Sycamore Way from East street to North Cochran Way has been a constant source of irritation and annoyance, not only to the police, but to the business houses and others, who have had occasion to use it. This was due to the fact that it is one of the busiest places in the city, when it comes to traffic.

Chief John F. Haven of the police department today announced that next week as soon as the proper signs are obtainable, that Sycamore Way between East street and North Cochran Way will become a one way thoroughfare.

Traffic will be permitted in only one direction—west, no traffic being permitted in an easterly direction.

Parking will be permitted on the north side of Sycamore Way between the points mentioned during the twenty minutes until 6 p. m. During the evening hours, this limit will not be in effect.

Chief Haven stated that there are sidewalks a considerable part of the distance where parking is allowed and the motorists are to remember this and in parking to leave space enough for pedestrians to get through without being compelled to go out into the driveway where they will be in danger from the motor traffic.
